

Minimal Economic Perspectives (On Europe from the People's Side)

By Shomit Sirohi

I. EU and National Governments - France, Spain and Greece, even Italy

Finally the type of fiscal deficit going into the plan of each center-left government is then introducing private companies to in fact make agreements with peasant classes for agrarian labour which has set off protests against the transfer of surplus-value at low pay and wage rates, which then is also in the fiscal plan a cut for healthcare, education and social security all of which is then a shift back to austerity along with the imposition of in fact wage cuts across the people and working class and peasant class - which then is a race to the bottom designed by center-left governments along with privatization and large such projects called a positive crisis in the sense of macro-economics but highly oppressive as World Bank and IMF sign the project as EU Mercauser - protests are about 50,000 people across Spain even as French peasants are in large protests against Macron.

II. Current Spending in Fiscal Plans and Increased Privatisation including Healthcare

So of course only 0.5 of the whole GDP or in fact large investment plan has gone towards in fact social expenditure or public welfare and instead all investment is directed therefore by governments including Nunes, Macron and Syriza towards corporations and capitalists - which has also led to a housing crisis and large movements building up against the center-left which is winning votes only by cornering in fact the institutional regime of in fact a lost opposition.

III. EU crisis or Heavy Privatisation which yields a trillion

So in fact with these oppressive rules and forcing upon the people austerity only since has there been as Ghosh would argue a spiral of abstraction called surplus-value which accounts for a lack of crisis - in fact a positive crisis, which though is based on the notional inconsistency of in fact low wages, and low social security with the profit dynamic and this then is how inconsistencies then make the extremes of profit dynamics and competitive capitalism with the poorest - leading to again in a few months a Greek debt crisis.
